

ASKS REPORTS ON PROGRESS OF R.C. ROLL CALL

Chairman Seeks Completion of Drive Soon

Donald P. McPherson, Jr., Esq., Red Cross Roll Call chairman in Adams county, today issued a request to all community chairmen in the county to make reports this week to the chapter office in the court house on the progress they have made in the annual appeal for funds with which to carry on a greatly expanded program during the coming year.

The county's goal is $3,000 and 2,700 members. The first few solicitors' reports have brought in a total of $200 to date. Every effort is being made to complete the roll call in Adams county this week or during the early part of next week, although the roll call period officially extends until November 28.

First reports from solicitors are encouraging and a number have shown increases over last year's figures in the amounts gathered in their respective territories. Word has come to the office that a number of organizations have complied with the Red Cross request to "give more" than last year and have increased and in some cases doubled their 1939 membership contribution.

The Arendtsville public school teachers are the first outside of Gettysburg to announce 100 per cent enrollment in the Roll Call this year. Teachers at High street school here were the first in the county to report complete enrollment.

The first list of county donors to the current Roll Call follows:

Premen's association of Adams county, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks No. 1045, Gettysburg Aerie No. 1562 F.O.E., Washington Camp No. 414 P. O. S. of A., Battlefield Council No. 717 O. of I. A., Queen of Peace Council No. 11 P. C. B. L.

Services Well Organized
 "The mobilization of man power for national defense will demand increased Red Cross services to the armed forces of America," Mr. McPherson declared today. "These services, he pointed out, stem directly from the congressional charter of the American Red Cross which is a mandate to every local chapter and branch of the organization.

"Fortunately," Mr. McPherson added, "these services are so well organized nationally and locally that they are capable of rapid expansion. Cost of the necessary extension of activities on behalf of service men will be met, as in the past, from membership contributions.

"The war service of the American Red Cross," he announced, "has representatives at 77 field offices and hospitals, contacting the various elements of the armed forces at some 860 points. In the last year more than 53,000 soldiers, sailors, marine and coast guardsmen or their families were aided in solving all kinds of problems arising from economic, illness and social causes.

"This Red Cross activity is based on a recognized medical principle that anxiety, fear and other temporary mental disturbances tax the morale of able-bodied men and women."

U.S. News Dispatches From Spain Prohibited

Madrid, Nov. 15 (AP)—All American correspondents in Spain were forbidden today to send out news dispatches beginning next Monday in reprisal for what officials said was American refusal to allow the Spanish official news agency E.F.E. to operate in the United States.

(E.F.E. pronounced "ay-fay," is the foreign service of the official news agency E.F.E.-Cifra.)

The ban embraces the Associated Press, the United Press, the New York Times, and the Chicago Tribune.

The above newspapers and agencies mentioned are those with regular offices and staff correspondents in Madrid.

The reason given was that the United States government had refused entrance visas for correspondents of the Spanish agency E.F.E. which the agency had planned to send to America and that E.F.E. had been refused permission to set up an office in the United States.

It had been proposed to send as E.F.E. correspondent to the United States Jose Antonio Jimenez Arnau, brother of the director general of the Spanish government press bureau, Enrique Jimenez Arnau.

No further details were given.

There was no indication that American correspondents would be obliged to leave the country.

COURT HOUSE TO OBSERVE BOTH THANKSGIVINGS

Judge Explains Situation; Trials Open Nov. 25

Judge W. C. Sheely this afternoon cleared up uncertainty about the November court schedule and Thanksgiving Day observance at the court house with the announcement that both days will have to be observed at the county building.

Since Governor James has proclaimed the 28th as Thanksgiving Day and a legal holiday that date will have to be observed. No court sessions will be held on that day and the county building will be closed.

With the banks closing also on the 21st and with that date listed in the official court calendar as a holiday, that date also will have to be observed at the court house, the judge explained.

The regular court session will open on Monday, November 25, and then omit a Thursday session that week. At the end of the week, court sessions will be suspended until the week of December 9 when court will re-convene to clear up remaining November cases. The first week of November is being left free in view of the many requests received from jurors, witnesses, officials and attorneys for time to enjoy the first week of the deer hunting season.

The Gettysburg Times will be published on the 21st but will not be issued on the 28th.

"First Come, First Served" Rule Used By Draft Districts

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—A "first come, first served" rule was laid down today for the acceptance of selective service volunteers.

National headquarters, in issuing the ruling, informed local draft boards that whenever there was doubt as to which of two or more men was first, the question could be decided by lot.

Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, selective service director, said in some local board areas volunteers exceeded the first year's quota. Only enough volunteers to fill a quota may be accepted, he emphasized.

The selective service program permits men to volunteer immediately for their year's training, even though the number they drew in the conscription lottery was so high that they would not be subject to call for several years. Volunteers will be jumped to the head of the list, regardless of the number of non-volunteers ahead of them.

Dr. Dykstra made it clear, however, that local boards had power to defer anyone it believes to be volunteering for the purpose of escaping obligations to dependents. He also noted that, to be accepted, a volunteer must meet the same requirements as a drafted man.

Schedule of Adams County Meetings Announced

Adams county farmers cooperating in the agricultural conservation program will hold their annual election of community committeemen for the year 1941 at a series of meetings scheduled in the various communities throughout the county. At the same time, delegates from the various communities will be elected to attend a county convention to select the county agricultural conservation committee for the coming year, according to an announcement by the Adams county agricultural conservation committee.

The schedule for the community meetings in Adams county follows: November 18, Biglerville, Biglerville auditorium, and York Springs, high school building.

November 22, New Oxford, high school building.

All the meetings will convene at 7:30 p. m.

The committee announced that every farmer who has a farm or an interest in a farm in this area or who has participated in an A.A.A. program, or who indicates that he desires to participate in 1941, is eligible to vote at these meetings. These county and community committees, this year as in the past, will handle local administration of the agricultural conservation program. In each community a chairman and two members of the community committee will be elected together with two alternate members of the committee. In addition, each community will choose a delegate to select the county committee for next year.

These election meetings take on special significance this year, the committee emphasized, in view of present plans for national defense in which agriculture is such an important factor.

HUGHES PLANS 250 MILLION ON PA. HIGHWAYS

In Next Six Years to Bring All in 3- or 4-Lane Class

Harrisburg, Nov. 15 (AP)—I. Lamont Hughes, secretary of Highways, disclosed today the department has asked all its district engineers to draw a comprehensive five-year program for improving and reconstructing the highways of Pennsylvania.

"They have been asked to list the projects in each county in the order of their importance to build," Hughes said. "That information will become available to the legislature or any other interested party when the plan is completed."

Will Recommend to Legislature
The department now is looking toward the two-year program it will recommend to the forthcoming 1941 session of the legislature which meets in January.

The immediate plans will be correlated as the beginning of the longer-range five-year program, and beyond that there is an even broader and more comprehensive construction schedule to put the state's highway system in first class condition, which Hughes estimates can be accomplished at an expenditure of $250,000,000 in six to eight years.

"This is only a capital improvement program," he said. "It does not include what we will spend for maintenance and administration. This program can be done with the present revenues of the motor fund and under the present policies of the department."

The "capital improvements," he said, include construction, reconstruction, widening and major resurfacing. The plan calls for bringing all major highways to a three or four-lane condition, and includes improvement of the more important secondary and rural roads.

Budget estimates show that with increased gasoline consumption and higher license fees from automobile, the motor fund may expect to receive its largest income in history during the 1941-43 biennium which starts June 1, 1941.

General Fund Will Repay
The estimate of receipts is being increased from around $165,000,000 in the present biennium to $170,000,000 or more in the next, and in addition, the general fund will repay $37,000,000 borrowed from the motor fund by the 1940 special session at the start of the new biennium.

C. H. Buckius, assistant to the highways secretary, said the department estimates a total road program in each of the two years of around $75,000,000. "We have between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000 yet to be let in contracts this year, and a total of $7,000,000 to place under contract before the end of this biennium."

Reds Answer One Riddle

Russia supplied a partial answer Thursday night to one of the riddles of the second crisis of the war. Foreign Minister Molotov left Berlin without signing an agreement and with indications that none of great consequence had been reached.

Berlin had announced he would remain for "several days." He departed after less than 48 hours. He took with him his entire staff of experts, leaving none to complete any matters of detail.

Much had happened since Molotov left Moscow Sunday. Italy's fleet had been heavily blasted. Italy's invasion of Greece appeared a flop. The Italian wheel of the axis was wobbling.

General Weyand's intentions in French North Africa remained a mystery. Should he rejoin Britain, the axis would become a sorry wagon to which to hitch Russia's Red Star.

High School Notes

Gordon Bennett, artist, photographer and adventurer, addressed and presented moving pictures to the faculty and student body of Gettysburg high school, Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Bennett showed Russia as it exists today and told in an unprejudiced manner the conditions and changes in the melting pot of human relations.

Pictures also were shown of the harvest story, how the peasants fight the soil, rear their children and do their daily tasks. It was a true and human interest story in the private lives of these people.

Human interest is Mr. Bennett's highlight and it is that that makes his pictures and talks so real and unforgettable.

Edwin Longenecker, instructor of junior English, has been confined to his home on Oak Ridge by illness.

tard recovery for the sick. The removal or mitigation of the cause of such worry by the Red Cross is a definite contribution to recovery from illness, safety of men engaged in hazardous work and the maintenance of higher individual and group morale.

With a new urgency bearing down upon it, the war service also continues to carry on its program for disabled veterans of past wars, he said. The individual cases of 140,000 United States veterans or their dependents came under Red Cross care in chapters last year. In regional offices of the United States Veterans administration and in government hospitals, Red Cross workers dealt with the problems of 58,000 ex-servicemen or their families.

He stated that this entire program is "operated for the benefit of every American. It is conducted for our own sons, brothers and fathers. We can help by joining the American Red Cross today, or by renewing our membership from last year."

The President also submitted to the senate a nomination for Madden to be a judge of the United States court of claims.

Mills, 67, was a member of the Labor board before it was reconstituted and given greater powers under the Wagner act in 1935. He is expected in some quarters to cooperate with board member William M. Leiserson in the latter's program for changes in staff and procedure. Edwin S. Smith is the third member of the board.

The dispatch said:

2 Italian Divisions Lost
In the 19-day-old Balkan war, the Athens radio reported the destruction of two Italian divisions, about 30,000 men, and said the Greeks had driven Premier Mussolini's fascist invaders back to the Albanian border.

The Italian retreat was described as rapidly assuming the proportions of a rout, with the Greeks capturing "thousands" of prisoners after reportedly smashing an Italian army which outnumbered them three to one.

The Greek army was taking the offensive along the entire 100 mile front, from the Ionian sea to the Yugoslav border, the radio said.

The Italian high command dismissed the whole campaign in its daily communiqué with the terse comment:

"Normal patrol and artillery activities are taking place in Epirus (in northwest Greece)."

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT

The obvious story between the meeting of the German and Italian high commands in Innsbruck today is that Mussolini has asked Hitler for help against the Greeks.

That he needs it urgently there is no doubt. The Greeks are reported to be advancing into Albania on a 100-mile front, and there is a very real threat that they may cut off southern Albania. Conceivably, the Italians could be trapped there as was the B.E.F. in Flanders.

British warships and planes have hampered Italian supplies and reinforcements in the strait of Otranto; half of Italy's capital ships are reported to be maimed and waterlogged in the naval base of Taranto, victim of British aerial torpedoes.

That Hitler will help his axis partner must be taken for granted, not because he especially wants to rescue Il Duce from the Greeks but because the axis is slipping badly in the Mediterranean.

Bucknell Opposes Bullets Here Saturday at 2 p.m.

Bisons Out to Avenge Last Year's 6-0 Reverse

Football does its fade-out here Saturday afternoon when the Gettysburg college Bullets meet the Bucknell Bisons in the final home game of the season. The game will start at 2 o'clock, a half hour earlier than previous contests.

Bucknell comes here with a characteristically strong defensive club but a below par offense. Coach Al Humphreys has been working desperately to develop a stronger attack and is all set to release a bundle of power and tricks against the Bullets.

This afternoon the Bisons were scheduled to go through a short drill here and indications were that Mel Knupp, star back, who has been out with injuries, would at least see action even though he is not in the starting lineup.

Ten letter-men remain on the Bison squad from last year and at least eight are scheduled to be in the starting lineup.

Against this veteran outfit Coach "Hen" Bream will send an eleven dominated by sophomore players. "All" Hill, tackle, and "Hank" Burman, end, are the only seniors who will be in the lineup for the opening whistle.

Bullet Changes
There will probably be two changes in the Bullet lineup from that which faced Ursinus last week. Jim Hardy will take over Fred Gettler's spot in the backfield while "Peaches" Devens is expected to replace Debler at guard.

Continued inclement weather on Thursday forced the Bullets indoors, the workout being held in the gymnasium.

Five members of the Orange and Blue squad will be appearing in uniform for their final home game. In addition to Hill and Burman, "Bob" Freeze, end; Joe Bratten, also an end, and "Whapper" Whetstone, back, are members of the senior class. Freeze will be unable to participate due to an injured knee.

Stands Reserved
Atoning for last year's 6-0 reverse will be an added incentive for the invaders which should make the contest one of the hardest fought of the current season.

Both permanent stands on Memorial field will be used entirely for reserved seat spectators. The temporary stands flanking the permanent stand on the north side of the field will be used for general admissions.

It was announced today that Junior Bullets will not be admitted to the game.

The probable lineups follow:

BIGLER ELEVEN SET FOR FINAL TILT SATURDAY

Important Game To Be Played With Camp Hill

Biglerville and Camp Hill, two of the leading contenders for the Class B championship of the Lower Susquehanna football conference, look horns in an important game Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock on the Biglerville gridiron.

Halted last Saturday after sweeping through to seven straight victories, Biglerville has been drilling this week with a grim determination to wind up the season successfully.

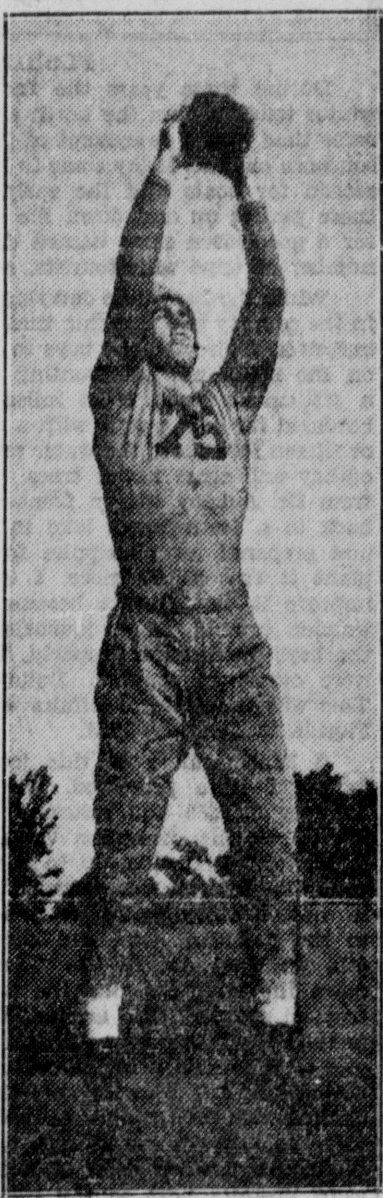

A victory for either team will put it in a grand spot to win the Class B title, the final outcome depending on several other games yet to be played.

Camp Hill has dropped two games in conference play and a defeat would definitely eliminate it as a contender. The high standing of the team is due to the strong opposition it has been called upon to meet.

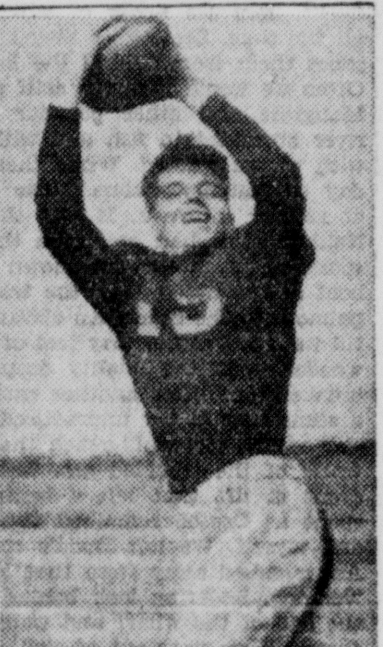

Eleven of Jack Yohe's crack outfit will be playing their final games this week and if the spirit of these boys means anything a Biglerville victory should result. All are bent on closing their career with a triumph.

OPPONENT FOR JOE

Philadelphia, Nov. 15 (AP)—The doubtful pleasure of a shot at Joe Louis' heavyweight crown has been awarded to either Philadelphian's Gus Dorazio or Red Burman, of Baltimore. The two challengers meet in Baltimore next Monday and Promoter Herman Taylor announced yesterday the Brown Bomber has agreed to meet the winner in a title bout. The fight, he said, would be held in Philadelphia some time in January. Dorazio recently dropped a 10-round decision to Arturo Godoy, knockout victim of Louis.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ
New York, Nov. 15 — Here are a flock of rumors we're trying to check as we reel to press — Davey O'Brien will quit pro football and become a G-man if the FBI approves his application. Gabby Hartnett is slated for a post with the Giants, either as coach or boss farmer at Jersey City. Joe Engel turned down an offer of $15,000 per to run the Brooklyn farm chain. Stanford scouted the Texas Aggies last week, which may mean a lot or nothing at all. An eastern university is after Vic Hanson, former Syracuse coach, none of these guaranteed for more than 30 minutes.

Mourning line — Latest football prices: Boston college 7-5 over Georgetown. Michigan 9-5 over Northwestern. Stanford 11-5 over Oregon State. Texas Aggies 4-1 over Rice. Cornell 4-1 over Dartmouth. Notre Dame 4-1 over Iowa. Princeton 3-1 over Yale (we can't see it). Tulane 13-5 over Georgia. Southern Methodist 2-1 over Arkansas. Navy 9-5 over Columbia. Minnesota 4-1 over Purdue. Duke 3-5 over North Carolina. Nebraska 13-1 over Pitt. Penn. 4-1 over Army. Washington 11-5 over Southern California. Harvard 6-5 over Brown. Oklahoma 9-5 over Missouri. U. C. L. A. 7-5 over Washington State. Ohio State 4-1 over Illinois. Auburn 2-1 over Louisiana State.

Bingo! — The Moundville (W. Va.) highs hits the jack pot... against Follafabee the other day they scored a safety, field goal, touchdown and extra point, all in one period.

Today's guess star — Harry Martinez, New Orleans, states: "If I had to lose my shirt picking an underdog this week it would be Iowa to run Notre Dame's undefeated record. Any team that can hold Biff Jones' Nebraska Cornhuskers to a 6-14 score can play for my dough."

Guessing contest — Now, who will P. K. Wrigley hire — Jimmy Wilson or Billy Meyer?

Stop the press! — Here's a wire just received from the coast: "Oregon State to upset Stanford Saturday, 13-7."

Puerto Rico's campaign to gain statehood will be intensified in the next year.

LOOKING AROUND

Waynesboro high is expected to clinch the 1940 championship of the Southern Pennsylvania interscholastic football conference Saturday when it meets Chambersburg high on the Waynesboro gridiron. After an unexpected reverse at the hands of Hanover last week the Tornado eleven is picked to bound back and clinch the honors this week.

However, Mechanicsburg still has a chance to win. In brief, here is what can happen in the remaining games: If Waynesboro beats Chambersburg and Mechanicsburg wins; if Waynesboro loses to Chambersburg and Mechanicsburg upsets Carlisle, Mechanicsburg wins; if Waynesboro plays a tie and Mechanicsburg wins, Mechanicsburg is the winner, and if both teams lose Waynesboro is still the victor.

Five lads who have seen much action in the Gettysburg high football games during the present season will be playing their final game Saturday when the Maroons meet West York at West York. The loss of all will be keenly felt as each has put up grand ball during the campaign.

Eddie Shoop, the speedy back whose cut back plays and sensational long sprints have caused plenty of worry to opposing defenses, is the only backfield man to be lost for next season. Shoop has been one of the outstanding ground-gainers all season and was a marked man by the opponents in all games.

Bob Thompson, end, has been one of the outstanding performers. Thompson blossomed into a great defensive star this year and proved to be one of Coach Forney's most efficient linemen.

Another end, Jimmy Thomas, while never of the spectacular type, played a hard, consistent game in every engagement and despite his small stature gave a good account of himself in each game.

Dick Ray has been a valiant performer at center and one of the steady pivot men the Maroons have had for some time.

The fifth man of the group is John Sachs, who as a sub lineman, has proven a valuable relief man.

Johnstown and Altoona To Omit Games for 2 Yrs.

Ebensburg, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP)—The 21-year-old football rivalry between Johnstown and Altoona high schools, which culminated in a free-for-all at the end of their annual game last Saturday, has been shelved for the next two seasons.

The decision was announced by the district six committee of the P.I.A.A. after a hearing here last night. The committee ordered the two schools not to play each other in football or basketball until January 1, 1943.

The game at Altoona Saturday came to a spectacular end when fighting broke out among officials and spectators. The referee, two policemen, a player and several of the 15,000 fans were injured.

MAROONS MEET WEST YORK IN SEASON FINAL

York Countians Expected to Prove Troublesome

Gettysburg high school's football team will close its 1940 campaign Saturday afternoon when it meets West York high on the latter's field.

Victorious in three of eight engagements, with one game ending in a deadlock, the Maroons can gain an even break for the season by upsetting their opponents.

The Maroons are not underestimating the strength of the West York team which is one of the leading teams in the Lower Susquehanna conference. Stiff drills were given the local squad during the week in anticipation of another hard game. The squad is reported to be in good physical condition and full strength will be available.

West York has dropped but one game this year and makes no secret of the fact that it expects to halt the Maroons.

Five members of the Gettysburg squad are members of the senior class and will be playing their final game in Maroon and White livery. They are: Thompson and Thomas, ends; J. Sachs, tackle; Ray, center, and Shoop, back.

The probable starting lineups follow: Gettysburg, Thompson and Thomas, ends; Carter and Bowling, tackles; Fissel and Fleck, guards; Ray, center; Staley, R. Sachs, Shoop and R. Knox, backs.

The West York lineup is expected to be: Eyster and Sweeny, ends; Joseph and Clingan, tackles; Zech and Bear, guards; Lehman, center; Spangler, quarterback; Kerr and Wildasin, halfbacks, and Folcomer, fullback.

Barker, Tex. (AP)—Making viol- ins is the hobby of Fred Smith, 84, who is deaf. Although they have a mellow tone and are ready saleable he has given away each of the 46 turned out.

Amos, of Radio Fame, Faces Real Court Suit

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP)—Law suits — the imaginary kind — are nothing new for Amos and Andy, of the radio.

But there's nothing imaginary about the one facing Amos in Superior court.

Under his true name of Freeman S. Gosden, Amos was sued for divorce yesterday by his wife, Leta, who charged mental cruelty. She made no specific allegations, but said in a statement later:

"His radio work necessarily requires so much of his time that it seems impossible for us to live a normal home life."

The Gosdens were married in Chicago, June 13, 1927, and separated last week. Filed with the suit were a property settlement and an agreement whereby Mrs. Gosden will have custody of Freeman, Jr., 12, and Virginia Marie, 10, their children, except for certain summer months.

"Kiss of Death" Proves Fatal to N.Y. Gunman

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—A "kiss of death" from a one-time St. Louis beauty, who swore to "get even" for a beating given her, signalled the end of ex-convict Red Murray Pershing, who was killed in a barroom brawl with three detectives last night.

One of the detectives, John C. Kenny, said this is what happened:

The woman, Dorothy Mori, 34, beaten a week ago by Pershing until she had to be treated at a hospital, tipped off police and arranged the rendezvous. When Pershing came into the barroom, she threw her arms around him and kissed him.

The detectives closed in quickly, but Pershing was faster on the draw and fired five shots. None took effect. The detectives blazed away, and Pershing fell at their feet, six slugs in his body.

The 40-year-old ex-convict, paroled about a year ago from Comstock (New York) prison after serving a 10-to-20 year sentence for assault and robbery, had threatened to kill the woman several times in recent weeks, Kenny said.

An Evening Thought

The things which belong to others please us more, and that which is ours, is more pleasing to others.—Syrus.

OUT OF THE PAST

Happenings of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times the files reveal.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Rotary Club Is Five Years Old: The Gettysburg Rotary club observed its fifth anniversary at its regular meeting Monday evening, assisted by the ladies of the club and a score of members of the York Rotary club, with their ladies. A chicken dinner was served at the Hoffman Hotel.

Rev. Cole Briefly Eulogizes Fallen Heroes and Emphasizes Significance of Armistice Day: In a reverent, though altogether unpretentious manner, Gettysburg celebrated Armistice Day on Wednesday in Center Square promptly at 11 o'clock.

The exercises in Center Square followed a small parade of ex-service men from the Albert J. Lentz American Legion home, led by the drum corps of the post. Arthur R. Jones, commander of the post, introduced the speaker, the Rev. Charles C. Cole, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, himself a World War veteran.

Local Theater One of Chain; Now "Majestic": The Higgins Amusement Company, Shamokin, has leased the theater in the Hotel Gettysburg annex. The Higgins company plans to formally open the theater on Saturday night, November 14, with a ten-reel motion picture. The lease is said to be for five years.

Walter E. Woodward, of Philadelphia, the manager, said the Higgins concern has given the name "Majestic" to the new playhouse, which is the largest and one of the best equipped in southeastern Pennsylvania.

Leaves Sunday to Pursue Course in Auto Repair Work: Fred L. Williams, for several years chief mechanic at the new Eberhart garage, C. W. Epley, proprietor, leaves Sunday evening for South Bend, Indiana, where he will enter the Studebaker School of Mechanical repairing and construction. Mr. Williams will remain in South Bend for six weeks pursuing the special Studebaker course on repair work and construction. Upon his return he will be one of the chief mechanics at the Eberhart garage.

New Theatre Will Open This Evening: Hotel Gettysburg's new theatre will be thrown open this evening for its initial presentation of motion pictures, when "The Road to Yesterday" a Cecil B. De Mille production will be screened.

Preceding the motion picture will be an organ recital by Duke Elde, recently from a popular showhouse in Philadelphia, and heralded as one of the state's foremost organists.

The first show will start at 6 o'clock.

Surprise Party: A surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Culp, at their home, 145 York street, Thursday evening in honor of the 35th anniversary of their wedding day. Both Mr. and Mrs. Culp who were married in the west, were the recipients of many gifts.

R. J. Funkhouser Buys Sure Foot Plant, $24,300: R. J. Funkhouser, Hagerstown, this afternoon at 2 o'clock purchased the Sure Foot Heel and Rubber company, "as a going concern," at a bid of $24,300.

Immediately after the purchase, Mr. Funkhouser, who is a brother of Roy P. Funkhouser, Gettysburg, has been acting as receiver for the company, announced that the capitalization would be increased, the whole concern reorganized and production of rubber heels be continued on a much larger scale than heretofore.

The new owner of the concern announced also that his brother, Roy P. Funkhouser, will continue as manager.

Prep Humbled by High, 13-3: Fighting with their backs to the wall and coming from behind in a dazzling fashion, Gettysburg High trounced the Academy by the score of 13 to 3, Friday afternoon on the Playground gridiron.

Edwin Markham Thrills Hearers: A capacity audience sat enthralled in Brad chapel, Wednesday evening, while Edwin Markham, author of "The Man With the Hoe," and other poems, painted a verbal portrait in glowing colors of Muse of the arts dealing especially with poetry.

200 Attend Dance of Local Legion: More than 200 young people, comprising largely ex-service men and their ladies, attended the Armistice Day dance of the Albert J. Lentz Post, American Legion, in the ball room of the new Hotel Gettysburg, Wednesday night. The Penn Ramblers, popular Gettysburg orchestra, furnished music.

Prizes for the winners of an "old fashioned waltzing contest were won by Harry Culp and his daughter, Madolyn Culp.

Mrs. C. E. Sloane and Sergeant Frank Stokes were second choice of the judges.

Personal: Miss Dorothy Crouse, stenographer in the office of the state highway department here, is spending a month with her uncle, Daniel Crouse, Deland, Florida.

Mrs. S. S. Neely, West Lincoln avenue, is visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Professor and Mrs. Paul Gilbert, in Freeport, Long Island.

Doctor E. S. Breidenbaugh will be host for the opening meeting of the Interfaculty club Tuesday night.

The Faculty Musical club met Saturday night at the home of Doctor and Mrs. Edward Sehr, Baltimore street, Saturday night.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

THE LAST HOUR

ALL days are precious, because each one gives to us that much less time in which to live and to serve. And yet there is immense satisfaction at the end of any day, if we can feel that we have contributed something, be it ever so little, to the happiness of others.

Thus may the last hour of each of our days be one either of rejoicing, or of careful appraisal. No other hour of the day should be so dedicated to renewed resolves and to peaceful meditation.

No one should ever go to his or her rest at night unhappy. No peaceful and healthful rest can possibly result. For years I have formed the habit of reading something cheerful and stimulating during the last hour before retiring for the night. I have learned that it soothes the mind, rests the body, and furnishes the unconscious mind with nourishment while the conscious mind, or the one of the day, is at rest. The unconscious mind never rests!

Having a selected few of the books one most loves, near to one's bed, is like reaching for the hand of a friend to guide one through the darkness of night itself. Where there are peace and assurance there can be no fear. It is fear that causes most of the restlessness and sleeplessness.

With the mind saturated with a love of beauty, and centered upon the spiritual forces that give to us all courage and leadership, we can happily welcome the last hour of the day as our richest and best.

Whoever initiated the habit of saying Good Night must have been inspired with a love for all human beings. Why should not every person in the world have a good night? We each can if we free our mind of all rancor, all unkindness, all envy, all resentment, and all antagonism toward others and the world.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "On Agreeing And Being Agreeable."

JUST FOLKS

by EDGAR A. GUEST

LANDLORD AND TENANT

I think it was at early morn
Or possibly at eve
Without a hint or word to warn,
My tenants planned to leave.

For them the building was designed
With ten apartments small,
But yesterday I woke to find
Them vacant—one and all.

When chilly winds begin to blow,
By experts I am told,
The martins always up and go
Before it gets too cold.

And now until they journey back
(Oh, pitiful disgrace!)
From far below the railroad track
The sparrows fill the place.

The Literary Guidepost

By John Selby

"FAME IS THE SPUR," by Howard Spring (Viking; $2.75).

A HUNDRED and thirty thousand people must represent enough of the public to guarantee a mere novel, and according to the publisher he has printed that number of Howard Spring's latest. This before publication—and necessarily before circulation.

What the army for whom these copies are destined will think after they get them is another matter. This reader's first reaction was a sinking of the heart, because the book is 726 pages long and as the pages are printed this means more than 350,000 words. For this or any other reader this is a good deal of a chore in the mere reading.

It means that most of the 350,000 words must be live and urgent if one is to get through them in good spirit. They must whirl the reader along, as do Hemingway's in his "For Whom the Bell Tolls," or they must be so rich in color and attractiveness, and the story so compelling that the reader loses count of his chore in the pleasure it gives him. Regrettably, this reader must confess that neither of these things happened to him. In fact, he began skipping at page 125, and the skips were long and athletic.

Mr. Spring's great virtue is his dogged sincerity. You never doubt his faith in J. Hamer Shawcross, or Arnold Ryerson, or Ann or the rest of them. He is writing a success story of a sort, and he believes in Hamer's success, and his failures too. He is trying to represent the arrival of semi-radical ideas on social matters in the English Midlands, and he believes in that adventure wholeheartedly. So does his reader; the difficulty is something quite different. It is that Mr. Spring plods. So do many of his words. For him a door is "an affair of stout oak," and when John Hamer Shawcross understands something, "John began to apprehend." A street lamp "cast a pallid light upon them," and "Ancoats was like an oven." You inch slowly through "Fame Is the Spur" and you like Mr. Spring and approve most of his ideas. But you get no sense of swinging along through time, only a feeling of careful exploration by a man who enjoys the least creature, found under the scalliest chip.

"Yet Fame Is the Spur" is going to have a great campaign behind it, and the chances are quite good that it will get somewhere. For there are a great many readers whose mental makeup is much like Mr. Spring's.

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

By Medora Field

YESTERDAY: Aunt Maggie had crashed the party Sally and Bill were giving to celebrate the engagement of two of their friends. But Aunt Maggie did not see much of the party, for she was murdered the first night, and the lonely house in the rain-swept country near Atlanta was thrown into confusion as a result. Now the hosts and their guests are searching the house while Andrew, the butler, tries to reach nearby Roswell to report events to the police.

Chapter Nine

ALONE WITH FEAR

WE FOUND Aunt Maggie's room as neat as could be. Slippers under the bed. Her deep purple dressing gown across the foot. Silver toilet things on the bureau. None of which she would ever use again.

Neither this room nor any of the others showed evidence of having been entered by alien feet.

Back in the hall, the candles cast weird shadows before us and Alice clung more closely to Bob. Instinctively I also moved closer to Kirk, for in the uncertain light it seemed to me that one of the doors of a big armoire moved slightly.

But when we investigated we found it empty.

"Just nerves," laughed Kirk reassuringly.

We had almost finished with the second floor when we met the other crew. Evidently I was not the only one suffering from nerves, for Bill was still kidding Eve because she had brought along one of the darts from the game room.

"For protection," she announced. "I told her an ice pick would be much more efficient," Bill said.

"But you could do a pretty good job with this, planted right in the vicinity of the heart," Eve argued, flourishing the heavy feather-tipped steel pin to illustrate her point and making Alice wince.

"Shouldn't think it would be long enough," said Bob.

"Oh, yes, the pin is nearly three inches," she pointed out.

Nobody had found anything on the tour. But Andrew had come back into the house. It developed that there were two tires flat on Bill's car. That tires on every car on the place were flat.

Somebody had accomplished this very neatly by removing the valve cores from at least two tires on each car.

Delay

After a good deal of rather pointless discussion as to ways and means, it was finally decided to postpone until morning any further effort to get in touch with the outside world. And when I say outside world, I am in no way exaggerating the feeling of isolation which completely overwhelmed us, although we were only five miles from Roswell and twenty from Atlanta. No telephone, no electric lights, the automobiles out of commission, the road practically impassable and the rain still pouring. And in the drawing room the sheeted figure of Aunt Maggie, with finger marks on her throat.

So it was not a very gay house-party group gathered around the fire in the library. There had been times when I thought candlelight romantic, but this was not one of them. Beyond the circle of the firelight the big old room was full of shadows, and beyond these shadows the outer rooms were swallowed in darkness so complete that it was almost palpable. One felt it there waiting, with something ominous in the waiting—fingers, perhaps, which might reach out and draw one into the suffocation of darkness even more final.

In fact, when Andrew opened the dining-room door unexpectedly, Claire who was sitting with her back toward him, started up with a little involuntarily cry of fright. Bob and Kirk both sprang up as though to rush to her defense, furnishing the rest of us a little comic relief from strain and giving all an opportunity to laugh, even though some of us did so a bit shakily.

Andrew, the unwitting cause of it all, was triumphantly holding aloft an oil lamp, and I for one felt like giving him three rousing cheers at the sight. He had remembered the two lamps and can of kerosene oil which we had moved from the kitchen pantry to the basement, and he and Bessie had salvaged them and put the lamps in condition for use. My grandmother kept them because she never quite trusted electricity. A search of all the cars had revealed only one flashlight.

"Where you want I should put the other'n, Miss Sally?" Andrew asked.

"Why not just bring it in here? Even then we won't be any too bright."

"I thought as how you might want it in the front hall, mebbe, to light you up the steps."

"All right," I said. As usual, Andrew had worked it all out beforehand. "And please bring in some extra candles, so there will be enough for all the bedrooms."

"They're already candles in them silver candle dishes on the bedside tables, Miss Sally."

"Yes, I know, but these are to get us to the bedrooms." Efficient as he is, there are plenty of times when I wish Andrew wasn't quite so omniscient.

I felt a little conscience-stricken when Andrew came in again a few minutes later with fresh coffee and big cups to serve it in this time. We were all surprised to discover that it was only twelve o'clock. So much had happened since I looked at my wrist watch at eight o'clock and decided that dinner must be served at once, lest Bob drink more than even he could carry gracefully.

Talking it over, we figured that it must have been about ten o'clock when Aunt Maggie was discovered at the foot of the back stairs.

"Bessie and Andrew had not finished clearing up when I left them in the kitchen," I recalled, "and—found Aunt Maggie."

"I was in the powder room," said Eve.

And at that everyone tried to remember where he or she had been at the particular moment when the alarm first sounded.

Nobody, it seemed, had been with anybody else.

Bill had taken Kirk to the game room after dinner, but had left him there for a few minutes to go upstairs for the ping-pong net and rackets, which he had failed to bring down earlier in the evening. Alice was in her bedroom on the second floor. Not even the engaged pair were together.

"I was looking at those miniatures in the drawing room," said Claire. "There is one that looks very much like you, Sally, but I suppose you know that."

Bob said briefly, "I had gone upstairs to my room for a moment."

But none of the three on the second floor had come down the stairs together. Andrew, who had summoned Bill, had followed him down the back stairs. Alice had descended by way of the front stairs. Bob said he had seen her below him in the hall when he reached the landing.

"I heard someone behind me," Alice affirmed. "But I hurried on without looking back."

"It must have happened when I was right there in the powder room," Eve said slowly, as though the idea had just occurred to her. A puzzled look came into her dark eyes, then her expression cleared and she added, "That must be why I thought—"

But as we all turned our attention full upon her, she broke off, leaving the sentence hanging incomplete in mid-air. "Thought what?" Bob asked for all of us.

She laughed a little uncertainly for one usually so belligerently poised. "Nothing," she replied. "Just something I hadn't thought of before."

Death Watch

This did not strike me as in any way significant at the time. I was too busy resenting Eve's intrusion at Wisteria Hall, for it had just dawned on me that except for her egotistical dissertation on jade, which had held me in the library, I might have reached the back passageway in time to prevent a murder. Surely Aunt Maggie could have been dead only a few minutes when I found her.

Aunt Maggie had had her coffee and had left us. The sweater showed that she had returned to her room and had probably meant to spend the evening in the study. Certainly that had been her announced intention. Something or somebody had brought her downstairs to her death.

These reflections on my part were broken in upon by Bob. "I know this is on everybody's mind," he said, as he refilled and lighted the pipe which apparently had been a bone of contention between himself and Eve, "and, of course, we are all sad because of Aunt Maggie's death. She was really just like a member of my own family. But, after all, there is nothing we can do about it tonight. So let's try to talk about something else. Or better still, why don't we go to bed? Tomorrow is bound to be quite a day for all of us."

Nobody was sleepy, of course. But Bill added his approval to Bob's suggestion. "There will have to be an investigation and probably an inquest," he pointed out. "We will all have to answer questions as witnesses."

"But that's just the thing," said Alice. "There weren't any witnesses. And, anyway, how can anybody try to sleep with a murderer running around loose? We might all be murdered in our beds."

"I figure we are probably safe enough," said Bob. "Why should somebody make sure that we are stuck here, with no means of outside communication, unless he wanted to make his own getaway?"

"That sounds reasonable enough," Kirk agreed. "If anything about the situation can be called reasonable."

"Just the same," said Bill, "I think I'll keep at least one eye open."

"I was just getting ready to suggest that we take turns at sentry duty," said Bob. "And I'll be glad to take the first shift."

"Oh, Bob, must you?" Alice objected.

"And why not, for heaven's sake?" he asked sharply, as though his nerves had finally worn thin from too much sisterly clinging.

Both Bill and Kirk insisted also that they would take the first shift, or remain up the rest of the night if necessary; but Bob, a little grim by now, would have none of it. He would call Kirk at the end of two hours, he promised, and at the end of another two, Kirk could call Bill.

GERMANS EXPEL FRENCH FROM LORRAINE AREA

Regarded as Step to Absorb Land Into Reich

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—Germany's expulsion of French-speaking residents from France's province of Lorraine was regarded in informed diplomatic quarters here as one more step in Chancellor Hitler's plan to absorb that long-contested borderland in his "Greater Reich."

If the French are being replaced by Germans from the Ruhr valley—as reported in informed circles in Vichy—it also may mean that persistent British bombing of Germany's highly industrialized Ruhr valley has been effective to a degree not hitherto admitted by Berlin.

Before I left Vichy recently it was widely reported that the R.A.F. had been making it so "hot" for the Ruhr that many Germans were moving across the border and taking over homes of French refugees who had not yet returned to the occupied region. Wholesale expulsion of French from Lorraine would provide more homes for bomb-shy Germans from the Ruhr, and at the same time enable Hitler to "Germanize" Lorraine thoroughly.

Although the expatriation of French from Lorraine apparently has now assumed grand scale proportions, the actual start of this German program dates back to the days immediately following the fall of France. Before I left unoccupied France at the end of the summer between 20,000 and 25,000 French, expelled from Lorraine, had arrived in the vicinity of Lyons.

All reported they first had been notified they could remain in Lorraine if they became German citizens. Within a few days, however, they were informed that since Lorraine was to be "rejoined" to the reich only people of German blood could remain.

Among the refugees were many farmers who said squads of German soldiers had suddenly appeared with orders for their immediate removal, forcing the evacuation of entire villages and farm communities with only two hours warning.

JAMES APPOINTS JUDGE

Harrisburg, Nov. 15 (AP)—Governor James Thursday appointed Vincent A. Carroll, assistant district attorney in Philadelphia, as judge of the city's common pleas court No. 2. He succeeds the late Theodore Rosen. The term expires on the first Monday in January, 1942.

Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exquisitely prepared emollient, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy. . . it helps keep the skin soft and pliable. . . thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin. . . for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use.

Mother's Friend

Highly praised by users, many doctors and nurses. Just ask any druggist for Mother's Friend—the skin lubricant. Try it tonight.

"SUNSET MEMORIES"

A Retrospect of a Life spent during the last seventy years of the Nineteenth Century

By LEONARD MARSDEN GARDNER

During these years the Indian river became a popular resort of winter tourists from the north and west who would come down to spend some time in the enjoyment of the balmy air and warm sunshine of this southern climate. Many come to hunt and fish. There was a demand every season for boats and the early settlers found it profitable to convey these parties up and down the river. Budd traded off his "Piccaninny" for a good sized sloop named the "Mary I. Lewis." In this he made a number of trips with tourists, still keeping his headquarters at Crusoe.

While the boys were carrying the mail Annie and I became interested in the country and thinking that we might some day wish to go to Florida ourselves, I directed the boys to look out a favorable location somewhere on the mainland, but fronting the river. This they found at Ankona, a settlement about eight miles below Fort Pierce. The river here is bordered for over a mile with a fine bluff of chickeria rock, rising twelve or fifteen feet above the water and having a nice hammock of palmettoes, ed-bay and other native trees. They purchased a tract of twelve acres from Dr. Aukeny with a front on the river of 211 feet, and extending back to a fresh water lake in the rear. They had one acre cleared and prepared for pineapples for which I paid $80.00 and the slips to plant it cost $40.00 more. I expected the boys to remain here and improve it, but George became discontented and left the country to wander around as a journeyman printer. Before leaving, however, the boys divided the property. The two boats and the Ankona property were owned in common. Budd took the boats and George the land. This was the state of affairs when Annie and myself made a visit to Florida in January, 1888.

I kept a diary of this journey which will be found among the papers I have preserved. We left Woodberry Parsonage, Baltimore, January 2, 1888 and returned February 2nd, having been absent one month. In the meantime we had travelled on the Atlantic Coastline R. R. to Jacksonville, up to the St. Johns river to Sanford, thence to Titusville by rail where Budd was waiting for us. It was delightful to meet our boy whom we had not seen for so many years. We went to the Fairbank hotel and stayed over night. The next day January 4th, we went aboard the "Mary I. Lewis" and sailed for four days down the river enjoying the summer-like air and the beautiful semi-tropical scenery. We arrived on Sunday night in front of Crusoe and remained on the boat till the next morning, when we disembarked and took possession of the cottage. The appearance of everything around was enchanting. Flowers were blooming, birds singing, the forest around clothed with foliage and all species of vegetation new to us. We seemed to be in fairyland so strange and beautiful were the scenes around us. We spent thirteen days of unmixed pleasure at Crusoe. Annie and I slept upstairs next to the roof, and Budd in the cabin of the boat. She cooked the meals on an old rusty cooking stove in the kitchen, but the most of our food was canned meats and vegetables, except the bread which she baked in a "dutch oven." The river was full of wild ducks, immense flocks of which, numbering thousands, were in sight all the time. Sometimes they swam so near the shore that Budd could shoot them from behind the bushes and furnish the table with game. Often we would take the skiff and boat along the shore to look at the Mangrove and other peculiar trees that grow near the water. The river abounded in fish and with the spreadnet, Budd could furnish us with all we wanted. While there we would hear the sound, night and day of "mighty waters." The roar was perpetual and rose and fell at regular intervals. It was the beating of the surf upon the beach. Neither of us had ever seen the ocean though we had listened to the sound of it all the way down the river. One morning we got in the boat and went down to the trail and walked across, through the scrub palmeto to the beach. An elevation close to the shore kept it out of view till we stood within fifty feet of the top of this elevation and gazed with wonder upon the mighty deep. The waves were high, and the great breakers one after another came rolling in upon the shore, presenting a scene that to our unpracticed eyes, was awful and thrilling to behold. Far as the eye could reach there was nothing to be seen but the wide waste of the troubled sea. This, our first sight of the ocean, was an event in life that left a lasting impression on our minds. The days spent at Crusoe remained through life a beautiful memory to Annie and myself. We left Budd's cottage on the morning of January 20th. As we sailed away from that lonely spot we could not help but cast a "longing, lingering look behind." Budd's big spotted cat came out on the end of the wharf and watched us as we sailed away and remained there till we were out of sight. "Grover" was the only pet he had and would remain alone on the place for weeks during his absence.

SCOPE OF 1941 LEGISLATION IS UNCERTAIN

But Joint Commission Next Week Will Plot Its Course

Harrisburg, Nov. 15 (AP)—The joint state government commission, which has been meeting between sessions of the general assembly, will convene in Harrisburg next Wednesday to round out a proposed program of legislation that faces an uncertain future in the 1941 legislature.

Republicans have dominated the commission, but the November 5 elections—resulting in a democratic-controlled state house of representatives for the coming session—altered the outlook for matters that have been under study.

Zion Lutheran, Fairfield

The Service with sermon, "Life Everlasting," at 10:30 a. m.; Children of the Church at 10:30 a. m. with presentation of offering boxes. Christian Endeavor at 7 p. m. Meeting of the men of the church November 25 instead of November 18.

At any rate, chairman Ellwood J. Turner, who will yield his house speakership to a democrat next January, said that Rep. Leo A. Achterman (D-Monroe), slated to succeed him in the speakership, has been invited to attend.

Legislation to Be Outlined
Subjects that have been under study, and which will be turned over to the democrats for whatever use they desire to make of them, include:

Revision of the civil service system for the division of employment and unemployment compensation.

Reduction of the state's payroll tax on employers who stabilize their employment.

Calculations showing what taxes of other states might yield, if applied in Pennsylvania.

World War Famine Stories Recalled
New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—News that dogmeat has been legalized for human consumption in greater Germany recalls stories of famine in the World-war reich.
Dog food was common then, but scarce. Horse meat, served then in some nazi restaurants, sold then for 86 cents a pound.
In April, 1917, a Dresden restaurant scored a coup by purchasing an elephant from a traveling circus to provide choice steaks and cutlets.
The last American woman to return from Germany after the United States entered the World war asserted that in Leipzig she found the piece re resistance on local menus was elephant meat, the heel being considered the greatest delicacy. The lions and tigers already had disappeared from the local zoo.
A returning American traveler said people were eating crows, which sold for 40 cents each. Sparrows sold for eight cents.

Germany countered a starvation blockade with substitutes or 'ersatz' products as people stood in long lines to receive their one egg a month. Gypsum and chalk were used to adulterate flour and baking soda. Carpenters glue was reportedly used in the manufacture of pudding powder.
The Swiss military attache in Berlin in 1917 said a chemical analysis of bread showed: Corn, 12 per cent; barley, 22 per cent, and wood sawdust, 66 per cent.

... because of what a SAVINGS ACCOUNT means to You
Our only reason today in reminding you about savings is because of the benefit a reserve fund will be to you.
Frankly, we have no real desire to add greatly to our savings accounts. It is not easy under present conditions to make money earn enough to pay savings interest. But we should consider it a serious neglect of a public duty, if we did not continue to tell every man, woman and child that a fund laid aside for the future is a protection for which there is no substitute.
